LAND ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

London Symphonia wishes to acknowledge and honour the land on which we are meeting as the traditional territory of the First Nations peoples: the Chippewa of the Thames First Nation (part of the Anishinaabe), the Oneida Nation of the Thames (part of the Haudenosaunee) and the Munsee-Delaware Nation (part of the Leni-Lunaape). Let us reflect on how we as individuals and as a community can carry this spirit of gratitude into everything we do to honour the work that all the First Nations peoples of the Turtle Island have done, and continue to do, for the land that supports us all.

Roy has directed 10 plays. His plays Moments With You and I See the Crimson Wave: The Nat Love Story had their premieres at the Here For Now Theatre and Talk Is Free Theatre.

Samuel Coleridge-Taylor
(1875-1912)

Samuel Coleridge-Taylor was an English composer, conductor and political activist who fought against race prejudice with his incredible compositions. Born in Holborn in 1875 to an English mother and a father originally from Sierra Leone, he liked to be identified as Anglo-African – and was later referred to by white New York musicians as ‘Black Mahler’, owing to his musical success. Coleridge-Taylor’s classical compositions were heavily influenced by traditional African music, making him one of the most progressive writers of his time. He also became well known for his use of poetry – particularly in his cantata trilogy, The Song of Hiawatha, based on the poem by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. His work across music and politics was so well received that in 1904, he was invited by President Theodore Roosevelt to visit the White House – a bold statement and a positive step forward in support of African Americans. Samuel Coleridge-Taylor died of pneumonia on 1 September 1912 in Croydon, at the age of 37. Throughout his short life, he faced financial struggles and personal tragedy, which are both often linked to his early demise.
